"Dear Susan and the Social Planning Council, I wanted to thank you and your organization for the Tracking the Trends Reports that have been assisting our agency for years in our planning and program design to meet the needs of our families and their children and youth. We have found that being able to access all this information from one place has saved us time and resources as the Tracking the Trends report is easily accessible and readable. Thanks for the great work, it is important and meaningful to our work"

ESPC ORIGINS

Back in 1939 a group of 50 Edmonton social service organizations voted to coordinate their efforts and move, towards integrations of a larger and more useful sphere of social service. This was in response to identified increase needs of impoverished families and the need for more equitable and coordinated distribution of services. As reported in the 1940 issue of the Canadian Welfare Summary, “the last war brought changed conditions in every community, and there sprang up distressed and bewildered families, incapable of coping with their problems alone, and requiring some form of assistance other than institutional care. As a variety of social services emerged to deal with this crisis, and as a new war appeared on the horizon, “Edmonton prepares to consolidate its peace-time efforts to the end that no overlapping of services may hinder its effective functioning and no unnecessary expenditure of money may result”.

In February of 1940 the Council was incorporated under the Societies Act and began its work under the name Edmonton Council of Social Agencies. As a result, over 60 social agencies were coordinated through one office.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT, GWEN FEENY

Gwen Feeny, President

As we reflect on 2017, it seems the theme of the year for both the Edmonton Social Planning Council and the Edmonton community may be that the only constant is change. With an office move, new staff and a constantly evolving political and economic climate, the ESPC has been kept on its toes in adapting the conversation. While the city and the province come out of recession, the work of the ESPC is vital in showing the impacts on the community and determining who is being left out of the recovery – and who was never part of the prosperity to begin with. With a recently completed municipal election and provincial and federal elections looming in the minds of many, the work of ESPC in providing well-respected research and advocacy around social policy will become all the more important.

Much of this ongoing work includes the bi-annual Tracking the Trends Report, an important source of information for policy makers and community advocates, as well as the Alberta Child Poverty Report in partnership with Public Interest Alberta and the Alberta College of Social Workers. Other annual work with far reaching influence in the community includes the updates to the Living Wage Report and the annual Vital Signs Report, with the exciting opportunity to expand these fact sheets to provide more focus on certain social indicators. ESPC has made another significant contribution to the Edmonton community in 2017 by researching existing gaps and barriers and recommending a LGBTQ advisory committee for the city.

A major focus of this year's work by the Board has been placed on ensuring that ESPC has a strong foundation and framework to build upon in the coming years. We must be ready and equipped to evolve to changing needs and challenges in our community by providing the same quality research and supports for which ESPC is known.

As such, the Board has spent considerable time together, and with the guidance and advice of consultants Ron Coulombe and Dree Thomson-Diamond, in working on a fund development audit for the organization. This exercise challenged the Board as we needed to think about ESPC and our place in the non-profit and research sectors in new ways but also allowed us the chance to be creative and to learn about new ideas and approaches. It is our hope that this audit will serve as that foundation to provide ESPC with sustainable funding, but also that it will create new opportunities to build capacity, adapt and respond to the Edmonton social planning community and to grow the work of the organization.

On behalf of the Board, I would like to thank the dedication and hard work of the staff in achieving so much in the midst of all of these changes. I would also like to commend our Executive Director, Susan Morrissey, for her unflagging commitment to the organization and her constant pursuit of the best for both ESPC and the Edmonton community.

It has been a privilege and a pleasure to work through these exciting and challenging initiatives with a talented board. I thank all of the Board for their dedication and hard work throughout the year and their openness to new opportunities. I look forward to the continued work ahead with a newly formulated Board in the coming year.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT, SUSAN MORRISSEY

Each year's preparation of content for the annual report is a great opportunity for me to look back and reflect on our work and accomplishments. Here is a high-lite of some of the work undertaken during the year.

We continued our work to inform the citizens in our community about social issues, challenges and trends related to poverty, homelessness and food security through lunch and learn sessions, our website and an active social media presence.

We engaged our community to increase their awareness and understanding of poverty by way of the municipal election by inviting all the candidates for city council to respond to our survey and explain their position regarding the City's role in addressing poverty. Their responses were posted on our website and through social media to inform citizens prior to the election on Oct. 16, 2017.

As in past years, we continue to research, analyze and produce reports including our updated Edmonton Poverty Profile, 2017 Living Wage and Alberta Child Poverty reports. Welcomed by our partners, decision makers, community planners, our work helped inform and advise them in their work to tackle social issues. We also completed, in partnership with the Edmonton Community Foundation our fifth edition of Vital Signs with a focus on belonging.

We were equally please to share our knowledge and work through the many presentations conducted in 2017. Whether it was to post-secondary students, partner agencies or service providers, feedback indicated the continued importance of hearing and understanding the data as a means to better understand the overall picture of poverty in our community.

So what was the impact of our work? Though very often this is hard to measure due to the complexity of attributing success to complicated problems, we finally saw the needle move regarding poverty in a few ways. In the fall, the City of Edmonton implemented the Ride Transit Program which offers a monthly transit pass to eligible low-income Edmontonians at a subsidized rate of $35/month. We are claiming a bit of victory here as we wrote position papers and spoke at City Council a number of times over many years in favor of establishing a low income transit pass.

Likewise, after many years of advocacy by ourselves and many other organizations at both the national and provincial levels in July of 2016 a new Alberta Child Benefit was introduced by the provincial government. The benefit provides up to $1,100 per child, and up to $550 per child for each of the next three children annually. Fast forward to 2017, this was the first full year the benefit was being paid which was truly a game-changer in reducing child poverty. Have a look at our report Child Benefit Enhancements: Making a Difference for Low Income Families for more information on the benefit and real life stories of impact.

My sincere thanks and gratitude to our Board of Directors, Volunteers, Staff and ESPC Members for their continued involvement. Many thanks to the funders, including the United Way of the Alberta Capital Region, Edmonton Community Foundation, City of Edmonton and Alberta Liquor and Gaming Commission for their financial support.

What I have presented here is just a snapshot of the many projects, committees, and initiatives ESPC was engaged in during 2017. Reading further into the document will give you a richer perspective of the many ways ESPC engaged, informed and contributed our expertise to addressing the social issues effecting many in Edmonton.

BOARD REPORTS

2017 Finance Committee Annual Report

Committee Members: Doug Meggison, Committee Chair
Gwen Feeney, Maxwell Harrison, members

In November 2017, the Edmonton Social Planning Council board approved a 2018 calendar year balanced budget which included a modest percentage wage increase for all staff. In addition, each employee received a lump sum payment for the 2017 year prorated to hours worked.

A glance at the audited statement of operations for 2017 shows that for the fourth year in a row, ESPC realized a surplus in our operations. In fact, our audited financial report reveals a significant surplus of $32,684.

Increased revenue is accounted for by deferred income from the very successful 2015 Casino, an additional grant from the City of Edmonton's Age Friendly Initiative for an Indigenous Seniors Social Isolation research project and the Edmonton Community Foundation which not only gave ESPC a Fund Development Sustainability grant but also extended the Research Associate Position for three years.

Decreased expense included a position vacant for part of the 2017 year, a rebate for common area costs in the Commonwealth Building location, and less than budgeted expenditures in telephone, publications/subscriptions, stationery, and membership/professional fees.

Increased expense for 2017 included a $10,000 non-budgeted permanent endowment contribution to the Edmonton Community Foundation. The ECF will administer and invest the ESPC endowment. Persons interested in leaving a bequest to the ESPC can do this through the ECF. The ESPC will be the recipient of income earned on this fund.

In December 2017, the Board moved $20,000 of the surplus into Internally Restricted funds for future operating costs in the event of an unanticipated funding loss. The Board also set up two additional funds during the year: a staff development fund $8,000.00 and special projects fund $7,000.00. The Board will be reviewing and monitoring these funds and their use on an annual basis.

All non-profits are under pressure to use social entrepreneurial approaches to maximize grant and project funding, largely because core funding does not increase very much or very often. It is a constant stress on the organization to maintain our financial balance.

In 2017, our core United Way funding was increased by 2%. As a proportion of revenue from all sources, core funding from United Way of the Alberta Capital Region showed a relative decrease to 57%. [2016: 62.2%] [2015: 55.7%] [2014: 49.5%] [2013:54.7%]. ESPC has been a member agency of the United Way since inception.

The Council continues to do a volunteer casino every second year. These revenues represented 15.7% of our 2017 operations year. [2016: 11%] [2015: 10%] [2014: 8.4%] [2013: 12%]. The April 1-2, 2017 casino recruited 32 volunteers with a strong showing from the ESPC board.

Council executive director Susan Morrissey has continued to successfully—and dare I say relentlessly—pursue and capture fee-for-service research and evaluation contracts. Don McFarlane continues as our contract bookkeeper, and executive assistant Stephanie Haar takes responsibility for most postings.

Our 2017 audited financial report will be presented to the AGM by Carla Walker of Peterson Walker LLP and is available to members on request.

Doug Meggison

2017 Membership and Board Development Committee Report

Committee Members: Doug Meggison, Chairperson
Peter Schalk, Ben Whynot, members

The Membership and Board Development Committee recommends measures to improve membership growth and retention, facilitates board member development and coordinates recruitment of board members, subject to their election at the Annual General Meeting.

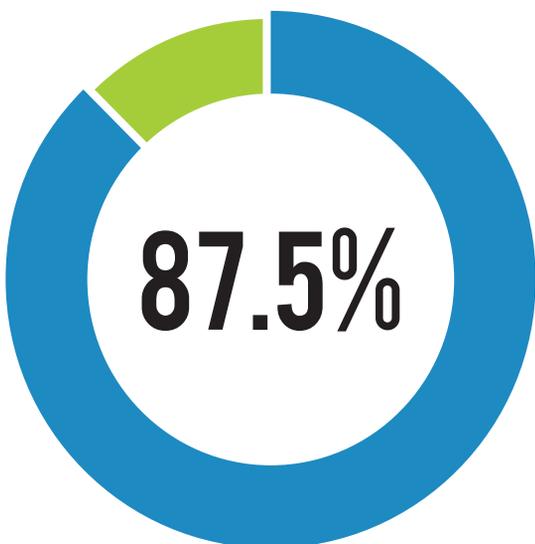

At the 2017 Annual General Meeting, the Council welcomed one new board member, Calypse Agborsangaya, and renewed two board members for a further two-year term. In the fall, the board thanked Alexandra Seaman for her service, and continued with eight out of a maximum twelve directors. In April 2018, we thanked Maxwell Harrison for his service.

Because our bylaws do not require interim board appointments until the number drops below eight, the board decided to wait until the AGM to bring in a full complement of directors.

In January 2018, the committee developed a fine-tuned plan, authored by Ben Whynot, to recruit board members well in advance of the AGM. We clarified wording on the ESPC website, advertised on our own site and on several other agencies' websites, reviewed applications, carried out interviews and made a recommendation to the board to nominate five new board members for election at the AGM.

The five new prospective board members will join renewing board members Candas Jane Dorsey, Peter Schalk and Ben Whynot in a proposed 'slate election' at the AGM. Nominations from the floor will also be accepted, provided the nominee is a member of ESPC and present at the AGM. President Gwen Feeney, Dave Trautman and Calypse Agborsangaya are in continuing term. Doug Meggison has been on the board since 2012, and will leave the board at the 2018 AGM, having completed three 2-year terms.

Future work of the Membership and Board Development Committee will include promoting membership benefits, attracting and retaining membership, coordinating board development activities, and reviewing membership categories and fees. We anticipate that much of the committee's work will be coordinated with the Fund Development Committee's efforts to develop a much wider base of support for ESPC's work.

Fund Development Initiative

Co-leads: Susan Morrissey (Executive Director) and Ben Whynot (Board member)

In 2016-17, the Board reported that we had revitalized a Fund Development Committee to focus on strengthening and diversifying the Council's revenue sources. This work certainly continued in 2017-18, but with a different approach!

Recognizing the scale of the challenge, the Council was successful in securing a grant from the Edmonton Community Foundation to engage two experienced consultants to conduct a comprehensive fund development audit and provide a final report with recommendations to the Board. Ben Whynot (Board member) and Susan Morrissey (Executive Director) served as co-leads for the initiative alongside the consultants.

The audit process included a half-day session with the Council's staff (October 11), two full day sessions with the Board and Executive Director (October 28 and April 21), interviews with the EDs of seven social planning councils across Canada, and approximately 40 key stakeholders interviews in Edmonton. This impressive array of data was leveraged to create a draft report, which is now undergoing a few more careful reviews before being finalized.

Although the report is still a draft, there are some insights to share that we learned along the way. Firstly, the Council is undoubtedly respected and appreciated, but we need to be better known. Secondly, we need to keep looking for compelling ways to tell the story of what we do, why it matters, and the impact of our work. Thirdly, we have to think carefully about how we go about raising additional revenue to ensure we stay true to our vision, mission and values.

Conducting a fund development audit was just the first step—and there is still a lot more to be done! The next step will be to establish an ad-hoc committee to create an implementation plan based on the audit recommendations, which will include strategies for engaging our membership in this exciting work! In the meantime, if you have any questions about the fund development audit or what comes next, feel free to e-mail benhwhynot@gmail.com.

2017 Policy Committee Report

Dave Trautman, Committee Chairperson
Calypse Agborsangaya, member

The committee's primary activity in 2017 was the Executive Director Performance Review. This is conducted every two years. Information was gathered, opinions were summarized and a performance agreement was signed with our Executive Director.

Our committee organizes the nominations of, and chooses the best candidate for, the Award of Merit. This year the board decided on awarding both an organizational award and an individual award. On behalf of the Policy Committee I would like to acknowledge the work of my colleagues on the board through most of 2017. The committee congratulates Paula Kirman as the individual recipient as well as the Jasper Place Wellness Centre as the organizational recipients of the 2018 Award of Merit.

The committee has been at work on some guidelines for the Executive Director concerning the financial oversight of some new budget categories created by the board. Our proposal will be presented to the board at its June meeting. A final proposal will be brought forward once input from the Board has been merged into the policy. This policy will help to ensure any future Executive Director will understand the purpose of these funds and the proper application of them.

In the coming year the committee will address any policy concerns brought forward by members of the organization. The committee also expects to fully participate in the development of policy related to our Funding, Communications, and Public Engagement activities going forward into the next few years.

MEET THE STAFF

Susan Morrissey - Executive Director

Susan Morrissey joined the ESPC as Executive Director in October 2005. In addition to the day to day operational oversight she spends a significant amount of time building strong relationships and brokering partnerships with like-minded organizations in the community.

Susan holds a Bachelor degree in Sociology/Psychology and Recreation Administration & Leisure Studies from the University of Alberta. Susan began her professional career as a Recreation Therapist specializing in dementia care programming and gradually moving more into a management role. In 1999 Susan became the Executive Director of the Association of Adult Day Support Programs, now called Eldercare which provided day program support to the frail elderly in a non-institutional setting.

John Kolkman - Research Associate

John has several decades of experience working as a public policy researcher, both in the non-profit sector and at the political level. Since joining the Council in May 2006, he has worked on social policy issues related to poverty, wealth and income inequality, removing employment barriers for those with low and modest incomes, social determinants of health, affordable housing, and neighborhood revitalization.

John has resided with his family in the inner city McCauley neighborhood of Edmonton for the past 30 years, and has been an active volunteer and leader in a number of community organizations. Married to Kate Quinn, they have two adult sons.

Sandra Ngo - Research Coordinator

Sandra Ngo graduated from the University of Alberta with a Master's degree in Agricultural Economics. Prior to coming to ESPC, Sandra was the community Resource Coordinator with the Multicultural Health Brokers and ENRICH.

Sandra was instrumental in starting the Grocery Run which is a program that provides fresh fruits and vegetables to refugee families living in crisis. She has been very active in the food security scene in Edmonton for a number of years.

Stephanie Harr - Executive Assistant

Stephanie Haar, our Executive Assistant, has returned to the ESPC after a two year absence where she was living in Singapore, enjoying the multiculturalism and varied environment of Southeast Asia.

Stephanie has extensive knowledge working in the not for profit section. Prior to joining the Edmonton Social Planning Council in 2007, she worked in the Vancouver Regional District. She brings a wealth of administrative experience and her skills are greatly appreciated within the organization.
